J. H. ANDREWS TO HEAD TRUST CO.

Cashier of First National Bank Elected to Fill Vacancy Caused by Death of Late J. H. Matlock.

TAKES CHARGE IN NOVEMBER

Until That Time Mr. Andrews will Continue in Present Capacity—Began Career in 1901.

J. H. Andrews, cashier of the First National Bank, was elected president of the Jackson County Loan & Trust Company to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Joel H. Matlock, at a special meeting of the directors late Saturday afternoon. Mr. Andrews has purchased a block of stock in the Trust Company and at the time he was chosen for the presidency he was also elected a member of the directorate. He will take up the duties of his new position shortly after the first of November, but until that time will remain in his present place as cashier. The directors of the First National Bank will meet this week to select Mr. Andrews' successor.

In choosing Mr. Andrews as president of the Trust Company, the directors selected a banker of experience and ability, one who is thoroughly capable to manage an institution of that character. He has had fourteen years of experience in the banking business, all of which time was spent in the First National Bank, the largest and oldest banking house in Jackson county.

Mr. Andrews was graduated from Purdue University in June, 1901, and a few weeks later entered the First National Bank as bookkeeper. On November 1, 1902, he was promoted to the teller's desk which position he held until February, 1904, when he was elected cashier of that institution. During the eleven years he has been cashier of the bank he has proved his ability and is recognized as one of the best bankers in southern Indiana.

As the First National Bank is a member of the American Bankers' Association, Mr. Andrews has represented his bank at several meetings and through them gained a wide acquaintanceship. About one year ago he was elected president of Group 7 of the Indiana Bankers' Association and completed that term about ten days ago. During his presidency of the Group he arranged for a sectional meeting here which was well attended and was one of the most successful held in Indiana during the period.

Mr. Andrews said that because of the pleasant associations at the First National he regretted to sever his ties with that institution but believed there are larger possibilities for him in the Trust Company. "On account of being with the First National Bank for so many years, in fact all of my business life, I naturally regret to break the pleasant associations formed in that time," said Mr. Andrews, "but I believe that the Jackson County Loan & Trust Company offers larger possibilities."

The Trust Company is the youngest banking institution in Seymour. It was organized very largely through the efforts of the late Mr. Matlock who was instrumental in its organization. From the time it was organized until the present day it has enjoyed a steady growth. It is expected that Mr. Andrews will give his attention to the development of several channels through which such an institution can work and it is predicted that under his management it will continue its growth and expansion.

LARGE CROWD HEARS FAREWELL ORGAN RECITAL

Mr. Walter Bidwell Gives Excellent Program in His Closing Service at First Presbyterian Church.

At the Presbyterian church last evening a large audience heard Mr. Walter Bidwell in an organ recital. It was Mr. Bidwell's farewell service as organist at the church, as he is to leave the city this week. He rendered several numbers in a most impressive manner, demonstrating his unusual skill and command of the organ. Miss Frieda Aufderheide rendered a beautiful violin solo, with organ accompaniment by Mr. Bidwell, and the choir also gave special music. Rev. F. J. Compson, pastor of the church, spoke of Mr. Bidwell's faithful service since becoming organist and expressed the regret of the congregation in his departure.

In a short and effective sermon Mr. Compson spoke on "Knowing More About Jesus," and urged a closer communion with Christ in every day life, saying that the hours spent in meditation and prayer were the most profitable of anyone's time.

MRS. MATTIE CONWAY IS CALLED BY DEATH SUNDAY

End Comes Suddenly After a Brief Illness with Neuralgia—Funeral Tuesday.

Mrs. Mattie Conway, wife of Thomas Conway, died quite suddenly Sunday morning at her home east of Uniontown. She had suffered with neuralgia since Friday, but her condition was not critical and she had assisted in the household duties at her home on Saturday.

Sunday morning her condition became more serious and a physician was summoned, but Mrs. Conway died before he arrived. She was sixty years of age and had lived near Uniontown for many years. She was a sister-in-law of Mrs. Catherine Jones, of this city. Her husband and three sons survive. The sons are: Edward, Clarke and Elmer Conway.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Baptist church at Uniontown, conducted by the Rev. U. M. McGuire, former pastor. Burial at the cemetery near the church.

Notice M. E. Ladies.

There will be a called meeting of the Aid Society and the ladies of the First M. E. church Tuesday evening in the church parlors.

THROUGH MEXICO WITH GEN. HUERTA

J. K. Waite, Chief of Engineering Staff of Dictator's Army, Tells Story of His Experiences.

DOUBTS ABILITY OF CARRANZA

Looks for Break Between Him and His General, Obregon, Meaning Another Revolution.

Special Engineer J. K. Waite, of the Pennsylvania Ry. Co., who is in the city going through the city records for the purpose of securing statistics on the amounts the company has been assessed for improvements along its right of way through the city since the incorporation of the city in 1865, looked up from an age colored record book of 1865, over which he had been poring and readily consented to talk about Mexico. And, be it known, Mr. Waite knows Mexico; knows its history, its geography, its prospects, its possibilities, its people, its leaders; what what it has been, is today and what it may be in the future. Knows it from living there, studying conditions at first hand and from service in the Federal army, where he was General Huerta's Major of Engineers, in charge of all bridge and railroad work in the Dictator's northern campaign against Orozsco.

Mr. Waite's picture of Huerta is a most interesting one, because it presents a different side of the man who has been pictured as a drunken and inhuman monster with an avaricious appetite for booze and blood. Mr. Waite says that in a strenuous campaign of eight months against Orozsco, during which he was in close daily touch with Huerta, eating, smoking and consulting with him daily, he never knew him to take more than a small whiskey glass half full of brandy a day, with but one exception, and that on a Fourth of July when Waite insisted on observing the birth of "Old Glory" and Huerta took an extra glass of brandy and gave his army a holiday to help the young American engineer celebrate. According to Mr. Waite, Huerta, to whom he refers as "The Old Man," is a genial, democratic personage, easy to approach, and a man who to use his expression, is "as nearly entirely reliable as it is possible for any Mexican to be." Waite was in Huerta's tent when he gave the order to have Villa executed, after his depredations in looting and sacking a captured town against Huerta's orders, and saw Villa led away to be shot. Staff officers of Huerta interfered in Villa's behalf, however, and the general relented and ordered Villa put in prison.

Mr. Waite is of the opinion that if the same recognition and support now being given to Carranza had been given to Huerta by the Washington government, that conditions would not be as they are today and that Mexico would be in a fair way towards an established government. "Carranza is a nonentity," says Mr. Waite, "Obregon has made him what he is, and when Obregon realizes that Carranza is about to reap the re-

100 ENTRAPPED BY FIRE IN FACTORY

GIRLS RESCUED BY ROPES

Several Jump From Third Story Windows and Are Severely Injured—Bodies in Ruins.

By United Press

Pittsburg, Pa., October 25—Officials of the Union Box Company whose plant in Alleghany was destroyed by fire this afternoon said at 2:30 that of the twenty-six men and girls employed only ten to their knowledge had escaped from the burning building. Of those who escaped, nine were in the hospital.

At one o'clock the bodies of nine girls and one man had been recovered and firemen said in their opinion the death list would reach twenty-two. One of the injured girls died at the hospital.

The bodies of four girls and one man, burned to a crisp, were taken from the upper floors by firemen, at least ten others were believed to be in the ruins.

Besides the box factory several other small manufacturing plants occupied the building. Police estimated at least one hundred persons were there when the blaze started. The dead, however, are mostly from the box factory.

Five girls were taken down a rope, three jumped from the third story and were injured severely. Others escaped by leaping across a space more than four feet wide to an adjoining building.

HORSES IN FAMOUS CULVER TROOP PERISH IN FIRE

By United Press.

Culver, Ind., October 25—The famous Culver Military Academy "Black Horse Troop" was practically wiped out here early today when sixty-three of the trained animals were burned to death in a fire that restroyed their barn. The Black Horse troop formed the escort of Vice-President Marshall in the inaugural ceremonies at Washington.

The sixty-three horses comprised all but three or four of the cavalry troop, the fame of which was country wide because of its unique worth.

The horses died in their stalls. The fire started about fifteen minutes after the troop returned from a cross country maneuver. Because of this it was not believed that the fire was incendiary, and probably resulted from a carelessly thrown match. The barn was insured for $2,000 and the horses for $20,000 but as they cannot be replaced except through years of training their loss cannot be estimated.

SECOND WEEK OF OCTOBER TERM OF COURT BEGINS

Court in Session Until Noon But Grand Jury Continues Work This Afternoon.

The second week of the October term grind of the Jackson circuit court began this morning when several divorce cases were heard by the court. Court adjourned at noon until Tuesday.

The grand jury is still in session and during the day a number of witnesses were called before that body. There is growing interest in the work of the grand jury, but as yet nothing has leaked out as to the character of the investigations being made.

Last week Carl Sumner was given a suspended sentence by Judge Swails when he pleaded guilty to breaking into a display case in front of Platter's Studio in this city.

MALLORY LINER COLORADO AFIRE OFF CAPE ROMAINE

Wireless to Charlestown, S. C., Stated That Crew Had Been Picked up by Steamer.

By United Press.

Charleston, S. C., October 25—Wireless advices received here today declared the Mallory liner Colorado is afire off Cape Romaine, thirty miles north of Charleston.

The message came from the Suwanee and said the liner had been abandoned and the crew picked up by a steamer, name unknown.

The Colorado left Charleston last night with a load of 6,000 bails of cotton bound for New York. Two tugs have gone from here to assist her.

The Colorado is an iron screw steamer of 2,765 tons. She flies the American flag and is registered at New York.

PRESIDENT WILL BE MARRIED IN DECEMBER

Ceremony will Take Place at Home of His Fiancee, Mrs. Norman Galt, It is Stated.

By United Press.

Washington, October 25.—The wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt will take place shortly before the Christmas holidays, probably December 20, at the home of Mrs. Galt on 20th street, according to definite information obtained today.

The announcement was made unofficially simultaneously with the announcement of the president's daughter, Miss Margaret's, departure for Madison, Wis., next Tuesday to resume social service work.

The wedding, it is stated, will be an afternoon affair with only members of the two immediate families present. The wedding trip will be in the South.

BULGARIANS ON THE DEFENSIVE

Offensive Movements in Serbia Have Been Broken, According to Today's Advices.

GERMANS ALSO DEFENDING

By United Press.

Athens, October 25—Bulgaria's offensive in Serbia has been broken at Veles, Salonika advices said today. The French-Serb forces were said to have united at Krivolak and struck at the invader's left wing. The Bulgars retreated in disorder, pursued by the Franko-Serb troops.

Other advices said the Germans also were on the defensive.

The French defeated the Bulgarians Sunday along the front from Ondovo to Krivolak after a twenty-four hours' battle, according to other Salonika dispatches today. The Bulgarians fell back with heavy losses. The French pursuing later occupied Babrovo. They were still chasing the Bulgarians today, it was stated.

IMPORTANT SUCCESSES REPORTED BY FRENCH

By United Press

Paris, October 25—Important French successes in the Champagne Sunday were announced by the war office today.

"The enemy," said the statement, "previously had a second line of strong salients compromising the slopes north of Hill 196. These works had resisted all preceding attacks.

"They were taken by the French after a desperate struggle. Their length was about 2,800 and their depth some 750 feet and they included three or four lines of trenches and tunnels defending Bououx."

Despite these fortifications of strength and the German defense resistance was entirely occupied. A heavy artillery bombardment preceded our assault. The enemy suffered heavy losses and left 200 prisoners from the different regiments.

WAS MISERABLE COULDN'T STAND

Testifies She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lackawanna, N. Y.—"After my first child was born I felt very miserable and could not stand on my feet. My sister-in-law wished me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my nerves became firm, appetite good, step elastic, and I lost that weak, tired feeling. That was six years ago and I have had three fine healthy children since. For female troubles I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it works like a charm. I do all my own work."—Mrs. A. F. KREAMER, 1574 Electric Avenue, Lackawanna, N. Y.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should be convinced of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly publishing in the newspapers.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

BUREAU OF MINES IS FACTOR IN "PREPAREDNESS"

New Director Says First Aid to Injured Experts Could be Used in Hospital Service.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—The United States Bureau of mines is the greatest institution in the country for preparing men for war hospital service, declared Van H. Manning, the new director of the bureau to-day.

"In 48 hours," he said, "50,000 trained 'first-aid-to-injured' experts could be mobilized in the great mining states of the country. I mean the trained mine rescue crews. Think what that would mean when this war has shown that economy in men is of vital importance and that the sooner a wounded man is given treatment the greater the chances are for his return to the firing line.

"Since 1908 the Bureau of mines as done extensive demonstration and training work among men in the big mining companies throughout the country. Every mine if importance now has its crops of trained mine rescue workers.

'These men are thoroughly expert in all sorts of bandaging, treatment of minor fractures, sterilization of wounds and probing for foreign objects in the body. In addition they are trained to use the oxygen helmet, which will permit them to enter places where the air is too poisonous to be breathed.

"Think how important this will be if the present 'poison gas' method of warfare is developed for a greater use in the future.

"In all mining states there is an annual mobilization of these potential hospital workers. Competitive drills are performed by the crews. This keeps the men in perfect training, accustoms them to working together and insures the certainty of quick mobilization in time of war.

"These men form the finest hospital corps in the world. They can move over all kinds of ground and to overcome extraordinary difficulties due to their mine rescue work experience.

"Another important feature of a hospital service, and one for which we are directly responsible, is base railroad cars, containing the necessary supplies and bunks for the "first aid" corps. We have eight such cars, a good nucleus for a complete service in wartime, and with scarce ly any change in apparatus, they would be ready to carry the crews as near a battle front as need be.

"Is it not an interesting paradox, that we who have devoted our energies to saving men from the dangers of industrial pursuit, should have at the same time trained a force capable of not only saving men from the dangers of warfare but able to send them back to those same dangers again to continue their fight?"

EVENTS IN THE WAR ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

By United Press.

The German Nieuport-to-Dixmude and Yser canal attacks gained no ground, France said. London reported general advances for the Allies. Russia reported victory in a big battle at Rawa, Russian Poland.

The British fleet bombarding the German left wing for the Belgians, was driven back, the Allies obstinately defended the Yser canal, some progress was made on the eastern front and the Russian Poland battle was undecided, Germany said.

Austro-Germans controlled a line from the Carpathians to Plock, northwest of Warsaw, made progress in Middle Galicia and near Przemysl and defeated Serbo-Montenegrin forces in Bosnia, Vienna said.

China demanded surrender of a Jap torpedo boat and crew which entered Chinese waters to tow away a wrecked German boat.

THE RICHEST AND TASTIEST OF CHEWS

"American Navy" is a Man-size Chew with Man-size Quality

THE MELLOW FLAVOR LASTS

It's the taste of choice tobacco leaf that pleases a man's palate and makes the use of tobacco a wholesome, healthful, digestion-promoting habit. And you can get that taste only in plug chewing tobacco.

American Navy has a ripe, rich taste that keeps you good-natured and plumb full of contentment.

Why chew tobacco that's made of leaf "cuttings" and loosely packed in paper bags when you can get American Navy plug?

Its leaf is the same as that of the best "scrap" made—but every leaf is whole.

And that rich, ripe leaf is pressed clean and wholesome into delicious golden-brown plugs where its fruity flavor is kept fresh and sweet and mellow.

The leaf for American Navy is rigidly protected at every step, and every plug reaches you absolutely pure, and so everlastingly tasty that it makes your mouth water just to think about it.

Try a cut—5c and 10c—that will convince you.

T. A. Reed, a well known veteran, has a decree of honorable discharge which was given to Frederick Willey who served in the war of 1812. The discharge is written on heavy parchment paper and the writing in ink is fairly well preserved. Willey, according to the document, enlisted in the Seventeenth U. S. Infantry on May 25, 1813, and retired from the service on June 9, 1815. It is signed by George Tod, lieutenant, and was dated Chillicothe, O., June 9, 1815.

DIPLOMATS SAYS JANE ADDAMS' VIEWS ARE WRONG

Solicitor General Davis Believes International Lawyers Can Bring About Peace.

By United Press.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—Solicitor General J. W. Davis, Uncle Sam's international lawyer and diplomatic affairs' expert, today refuted Miss Jane Addams statement that international lawyers and diplomats are not fitted to conduct peace negotiations because their training has been narrowed to give them a view only of their respective countries' interests.

"What Miss Addams says is not altogether true," said Davis. "In bringing about peace it is possible that the person who is a professional in international affairs may be able to help as much as the person who is an amateur. Such a person might be able to help a little more than an amateur."

DRYS PLAN FOR STATE CAMPAIGN

Immense Mass Meeting will be Held in Indianapolis November 16 and 17.

STATE WIDE PROHIBITION

Purpose is to Support Candidates for Legislature who Favor Temperance.

(By Dan L. Beebe, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 25.—The official call for an immense mass meeting of Drys which will launch a movement for a state wide prohibition law was sent out to-day from the headquarters of the Anti-saloon league. The call was signed by 700 men and women, representing their various communities.

The date of the "state convention," as the call names it, is fixed for November 16 and 17, beginning at 2 p. m. The place is Tomilson Hall, Indianapolis. At the headquarters of the league it was stated that an attendance of 3,000 was expected.

This "state convention" is preliminary to the formation of a state organization, the chief aim of which will be to work for the nomination at the primaries of candidates for the legislature who are pledged to the state-wide prohibition cause.

One such convention has been held in the past. Following the repeal of the county option law, a convention of protest attended by 1,700 persons was held there.

Of the 700 signers, 226 are Republicans, 156 Democrats, 81 Progressives, 62 Prohibitionists, 12 Independents, 9 Socialists and 144 not classified. The signers represent 70 of the 92 counties and are from 124 towns and cities. There are 33 church leaders, 36 manufacturers, 20 editors and 12 college presidents and professors.

The text of the call follows:

"Sentiment among Indiana voters is overwhelmingly against the saloon. This fact was demonstrated six years ago when eighty-two out of ninety-two counties gave a majority of 72,000 votes against the traffic. With these figures as a basis, and taking into consideration the remarkable growth of temperance sentiment since that time it is evident that the voters of Indiana would give a 100,000 dry majority to-day if the liquor could be submitted to them directly.

"But since the issue may not be submitted directly to the voters the only other immediate recourse left to those desiring prohibition is to elect a state legislature that will pass a statutory prohibition law.

"It has therefore been decided to launch a campaign for the nomination and election of a legislature that will pass a state wide prohibition law; for the nomination and election of a governor and a lieutenant governor who will administer that law; for the nomination and election of thirteen congressmen and one United States senator who will vote for national constitutional prohibition amendment.

"In order to launch formally this movement, to impress on all voters the importance and necessity of nominating only dry men in the spring primary election, to perfect the details of this great campaign, and to infuse spirit and enthusiasm into the dry forces of the state the following named persons hereby call a mass convention to meet in Tomilson's Hall, Indianapolis at 2 o'clock p. m. Tuesday, November 16, 1915. This convention shall be session throughout Tuesday and Wednesday, November 16 and 17, and shall be attended by delegates from the 92 counties of the state to be appointed by religious, temperance reform organizations. The basis of representation of said condensing shall be not less than one delegate and one alternate from each township in each of said counties, and from two to ten additional delagates and alternate at large from counties as it may be deemed convenient, advisable and possible. It is urged that all such delegates and alternates be selected in equal numbers from the various political parties.

"A large attendance at this convention is urged. It is going to be a great gathering. The business to be transacted will make the occasion memorable in the annals of the state. It is to make the formal launching of the fight for state wide prohibition in Indiana. We urge every patriotic, God fearing citizen of the state to join us in this convention, which is to plan such great things for our beloved commonwealth.

Among the seven hundred signers to the call are the Rev. T. C. Smith, the Rev. F. A. Steele and M. S. Blish, of this city.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH CLOSE

Splendid Work is Done Here by Evangelist Fred R. Davies During the "Fall Rally.

The "Fall Rally" which has been in progress at the Christian church for several weeks, closed Sunday. Splendid audiences heard both the morning and evening address. At the morning service the Rev. Fred R. Davies, who assisted the pastor, the Rev W. Paul Marsh, briefly mentioned the distinctive principles of the church and put forward the ideals for the work in the future. That Christ is unavoidable at ever turn, the home, business and national life, was asserted by the evangelist at the closing service. "Home duties, business sayings, all remind one of the Master and it is only fair and right that we take Him into our confidence in all things," the evangelist said.

The Rev. Mr. Davies expressed his appreciation of the hospitality of this city, the fellowship of the pastor and the liberality of the newspapers in extending courtesies to the "Rally." Mr. Davies is a man of splendid personality. He is a logical thinker and a pleasing speaker. While engaged in his work here he impressed those who met him as being sincere in his efforts and he made many friends.

SAFETY IN TRAFFIC.

In this age of high powered machinery used both for manufacturing and transportation, we hear much about "safety first," compensation laws, industrial boards and safety signals and appliances. Most of the laws and practically all the publicity have been directed against the owners and drivers of the machines and comparatively little has been said about operators, pedestrians or others who are likely to be injured by such devices.

The automobile has come in for its share of publicity and reckless driving has been righteously condemned. The roads and thoroughfares are built for the general public and pedestrians as well as drivers of vehicles are entitled to just and equal consideration. That pedestrians are frequently injured because of their own negligence was commented on at a recent "Safety First" meeting held in Detroit.

But it is not necessary to go to Detroit for instances. Recently one railroad instructed its local flagmen to count the number of people crossing the tracks who looked in either direction for approaching trains and the reports showed a very small number who were on their guard for danger at points which they are well aware are dangerous.

Workmen in factories and shop are frequently injured because they operate their machines carelessly. Of course, all accidents are not avoidable but statistics show that in a large percentage of them carelessness is a factor. Speeding, unprotected machines and defective devices should be eliminated. The pedestrian, the shop worker and the laborer are all entitled to the best and most effective protection against accident possible, yet the "Safety First" movement in factories and on the streets as well as on the railroads will not be a success unless all persons give it their support and are willing to do contribute their part towards its chief ends.

The newspaper fraternity has lost a valuable member by the death of James E. Caskey, editor of the Greensburg News. He has owned that paper for the last twelve years and while he conducted it as an independent publication he was active in Republican politics. He was a member of the Republican Editorial Association and attended the meetings with marked regularity. Because of his congeniality he made friends easily who admired him for his strength of character and his fearless fights for his ideals. He served as postmaster in Greensburg under the administration of President McKinley and was prominent in Indiana K. of P. circles.

The coming electioins next month will likely show the sentiment throughout the country. In some states where governors are to be elected the candidates have been making their campaign on national issues. In other states the issues are more local.

JAMES E. CASKEY, EDITOR OF GREENSBURG NEWS, DEAD

Deceased Had Many Friends Here and Was Prominent in Republican Political Circles.

James E. Caskey, editor of the Greensburg News and well known in this city, died Sunday afternoon at his home in Greensburg, following an illness with heart trouble for several weeks. He was sixty-two years of age. His daughter, Miss Marian Caskey, has frequently visited Miss Margaret Remy, in this city.

Mr. Caskey formerly traveled for the Journal Printing Company but twelve years ago purchased the Greensburg News which he had successfully conducted since that time.

He was prominent in Indiana Republican politics. He has served as district chairman and was appointed postmaster by McKinley. He was actively identified with the Knights of Pythias in Indiana and was recently appointed a member of the finance committee of the grand lodge of Indiana by Grand Chancellor Charles F. Remy. He had served on that committee for many years.

One of the most pleasant outings enjoyed by the members of the Senior Class during their high school career and one that will long be remembered was the trip to Nashville, Brown county, Saturday. A number of the high school teachers, parents and others accompanied the class and the party, numbering fifty-two, made the trip in automobiles. For some of the party it was their first trip into the "wilds" of Indiana. At this time of the year, when the foliage is changing from its summer colors to the fall tints, the scenery through the hills is beautiful. At noon the party enjoyed a dinner at one of the Nashville hotels.

While returning home the machine of J. J. Rottman, driven by Lyman Blish, collided with a telephone pole along the side of the road and the rear fender on the right side was smashed. Alfred William, a member of the class, had his hand on the outside of the machine and in the collision one finger was mashed, but not seriously. The accident occurred when another vehicle ahead of the machine started to back toward the automobile. In trying to steer clear of it the machine was driven close to the side of the road and grazed the pole.

wards of his work, then we shall see another revolution started."

Mr. Waite knows personally several members of the Madero family, and had met President Madero. He says the general belief in this country that Huerta was responsible for the murder of Madero is wrong, and that Huerta had already made arrangements with Madero to quit the country, and had a special train waiting at the station to convey him and his family to the coast. It is stated positively by those who know in Mexico City, according to Mr. Waite, that Madero was shot in an encounter between his guard and troops from Zapata's army, who were endeavoring to rescue the President and put him in charge of their revolution.

"Pacification of Mexico without the use of the gun is an idle dream," says Mr. Waite. "There are three classes of people in Mexico; two of them already have enough of the constant fighting and turmoil, but it is the third class which must be contended with. And strangely, probably, it is not the lower or totally igsorant people, it is the so-called middle classes, who have absorbed just enough learning to make them consider themselves above working and whose only recourse is to organize, elect a leader, loot and plunder a nearby town and live in ease and luxury and idleness until their money runs out, then repeat the performance. The wealthier class is tired of the war because it is getting to their pocket books—the only patriotism in Mexico—and the lower classes are sick of it because it is starving them out."

Asked about the present trouble along the border between the Mexican bandits and Texas rangers, Mr. Waite says that it would surprise him for the Texans to take things in their own hands unless the raids are discontinued. "The natural hate existing between Mexicans and Texans is almost indescribable" Mr. Waits said, "and the Mexicans dread the Texans. They actually believe that if it were not for Texas they could lick the rest of the United States without half trying."

Although he does not believe Carranza will be able to bring order out of the chaos now existing in Mexico, Mr. Waite thinks that there are several Mexicans who have the ability to do so, and that, once conditions are settled, there is a great future for the country. "Opportunity is there, in a dozen different forms; mining opportunities, agricultural opportunities, opportunities in most every branch of business await only the end of revolution and warefare."

Mr. Waite owns real estate in Mexico City, has several relatives there, and expects some day to go back. "Under normal conditions, if I had my choice of ten years in Mexico and twenty in the United States, I would take the ten in Mexico," he replied.

Mr. Waite recently received an offer from Gen. Villa to return to Mexico and take charge of the engineering department of his army, but declined with thanks.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Scores of local people sought the woods and river banks Sunday. Many bushels of hickory nuts were gathered during the day and many unsuspecting bass were hooked when they struck at the appetizing bait dropped into the water for them. Hickory nuts are unusually plentiful this fall and hundreds of bushels have already been gathered.

The police department is continuing its campaign against auto speeding, but believes that most of the local owners are driving their cars more cautiously than they did several months ago. The latest arrest is that of Walter Hackman, who lives west of the city, who pleaded guilty to speeding and was fined $1 and costs in Mayor Ross' court.

Despite the activity of the local police and the patrolmen on the B. & O. Southwestern and Pennsylvania Railroads, a number of train riders violate the law. Many arrests have been made recently and last month the number charged with this offense in local court was larger than any other violation. Today Jasper Dixon was arraigned in the mayor's court and on pleading guilty was fined $3 and costs.

FAMILY OF SEVEN DIE AT CROSSING

Automobile Hit by Grand Trunk Flyer.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 25.—When a Grand Trunk passenger train struck an automobile at Frayer, Mich., sixteen miles from Detroit, seven members of one family were instantly killed and an eighth was probably fatally injured. The dead are:

Mrs. Rachel Stoldt, forty-seven years old.
Pearl Stoldt, seventeen years old.
Esther Stoldt, fifteen years old.
Hazel Stoldt, twelve years old.
Mabel Stoldt, ten years old.
Martha Stoldt, six years old.
Miss Minnie Engel, forty-seven years old, a sister of Mrs. Stoldt.

William Stoldt, a farmer of Troy, Mich., the husband and father, was badly mangled.

Stoldt was the only member of the family left alive and he was unconscious. He was taken to a hospital in Mt. Clemens, where, the physicians said, he can not recover from his injuries.

There were no witnesses of the accident. Apparently Stoldt, who was driving the automobile, did not see or hear the approaching train, and drove the machine on the crossing. The train was stopped and the crew gathered up the bodies which were scattered along the right of way, a distance of a quarter of a mile.

USKUB FALLS TO BULGARIANS

Captured After Hard Fighting With Sarbs.

FRENCH DRIVE BULGARS BACK

Clash With Enemy at Robova and Force Them Back on Strumnitza—Allied Aegean Fleet Resumes Bombardment of Lagos and Dedeagatch.

London, Oct. 25.—Uskub, on the Salinica-Nish railway, was taken in the first great battle in Serbia between the Bulgars and the Serbs during the last twenty-four hours.

The Serbs determined to save this last city on the southern sector, made a desperate stand, yielding only inch by inch before the superior forces of the invaders. When the latter forces reached the city there ensued hand to hand fighting in the streets, probably unparalleled in the present war. The city was taken literally building by building, street by street, until its defenders finally were compelled to abandon. Both sides are believed to have suffered enormous losses.

It ended in the capture of the city by the Bulgarians. Situated between Kumanovo and Kiprili, previously captured by the Bulgarian invaders, this city has been their goal ever since, three days ago, they defeated Serbian rear guards in the Olce Polje plain, driving them due west on Uskub.

Advance forces of the French troops which proceeded from Salinica to come to Serbia's aid, have clashed with the Bulgarians at Robova, south of Strumnitza. The French are reported to have maintained the upper hand and driven the Bulgarians back on Strumnitza.

The allied Aegean fleet resumed its bombardment of the Bulgarian ports of Lagos and Dedeagatch. An Athens dispatch claims they entered Port Lagos and landing parties cut the railway leading from Gumurdbina to Dimotika.

The same dispatch says Port Legos is probably destined to serve the allies as a future naval base.

The German war office claims General von Gallwitz has taken the southern bank of the Jasica, near Palanka. This places one of the Austro-German invading armies at a point a little more than eighteen miles north of Krajeguvic, the present Serbian capital.

The German official statement also reports headway by the army of Gen. Kevoss, and says the left of the main army has crossed the Danube near Creova, where a hill was captured. This army is now due north of the Bulgarian right wing.

The northern Bulgarian armies also are reported to be making headway. The Timeont river was crossed by the Bulgarians between Zatichar and Kniazevac.

FRENCH REPULSE GERMANS

Eighth Attempt to Take Positions In Givenchy Region Defeated.

Paris, Oct. 25.—For the eighth time in five days the Germans attacked the French positions in the Givenchy region and as on each of the earlier attempts, were repulsed. The French fire was so terrible that the Germans were cut to pieces as they left their trenches and were compelled to give up the attempt.

Artillery fire continues at many points along the front. In Champagne, southeast of Tahure, the French fire has been effective against the enemy's trenches and earthworks, as also between Meuse and the Moselle, to the north of Rignieville and in Lorraine, about Aubermenil and Domevra. Continuous artillery firing is reported south of the Somme, in the region of Lihonek, Canney and Beavragnes.

TWO GERMANS ARE ARRESTED

Alleged Plot to Blow Up New York Harbor.

New York, Oct. 25.—Two Germans, whose experiments with high explosives secret service men have been watching for some time, were arrested in Weehawkeen, N. J., and those concerned believe they have stopped a conspiracy which had for its purpose nothing less than the blowing up of important defenses in New York harbor and at other places along the Atlantic seaboard.

Chief Flynn of the secret service, and Deputy Police Commissioner Scully, report the arrest as of very great importance. The first of the prisoners is Robert Fay, who says he is a sergeant in the German army.

His companion is Walter Scholz. He gives his occupation as that of a mechanic, but from his appearance the police are inclined to think that he is a man of military training.

Autos Crash; Two Hurt.

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Oct. 25.—Mrs. A. O. Meigs is in a serious condition with internal injuries and Charles Prange is suffering from painful cuts and bruises as the result of a "jitney bus" accident. The "jitney" in which they were riding crashed into another machine and they were thrown to the pavement.

JURY PROBES GERMAN PLOT

To Embroil America In Conflict With Mexico.

MILLIONS OF MONEY SPENT

German Nobleman, Franz von Pentelen, Implicated as Head of German Secret Service Spending Vast Sums of Money to Help Germany.

New York, Oct. 25.—A German nobleman, Franz von Rintelen, who numbers among his friends Prince Henry of Prussia and others of the imperial royal family of Germany, stands out dramatically in the investigation now being made by a federal grand jury into the activities of German secret agents in this country.

Information has come to the federal authorities that von Rintelen arrived in this country last winter carrying with him letters of credit of between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000.

There are two distinct phases of the nation-wide search being conducted by the federal government and centering in the hearings before the grand jury. One involves the identity of von Rentelen and it was learned for the first time that he is a nobleman that, during his work in this country he expended several, if not a score of millions of dollars. The other is connected with the attempt of German secret agents to embroil the United States in a conflict with Mexico.

Since von Rintelen's departure, it has been learned from several sources that during his stay in this country he was at the head of the secret agents working here in the interest of Germany; that he was possessed of almost unlimited funds and that he sought in many ways to help the Fatherland.

Just what work he was supposed to accomplish in this country is part of the investigation now being made by the grand jury.

One of the things he sought to do was to swing sentiment against export of arms and ammunition. At the time he said:

"If I can stop the shipment of arms and ammunition the victory will be as important for the Germans as the capture of Paris."

Failing in that he devoted himself to placing orders for arms and ammunition with the idea of cutting off the supplies to the allies.

He had one conference, it is said, with General Huerta in this city.

WIRELESS PHONES IN NAVY

Will Be Used to Talk Direct With Ships at Sea.

Washington, Oct. 25.—"The day is not far distant when the secretary of the navy will be able to take his telephone receiver off its hook and talk directly with the commander of any American battleship in any part of the world."

That was the opinion expressed by Captain W. H. Bullard, of the navy, superintendent of the fifty-two wireless stations in the United States and its island possessions.

"We are able to communicate with battleships now by means of wireless," said Captain Bullard, "but wireless telephony holds many additional angles. It promises to be of inestimable value to the navy."

SEEK FEDERAL INSPECTION

Housewives League In Campaign For Better Butter.

New York, Oct. 25.—"Give us better butter!" This is the slogan of a nation-wide campaign that has been started by the National Housewives' league, through its many branches, to secure a guarantee for the average American family table reasonably pure butter. A call will be issued in a few days to the hundreds of thousands of housewives on league membership rolls to take part in the crusade. Mrs. Julian Heath, the national president, says she hopes that the fight which will be waged will result in the awakening of congress to the ralization of the necessity of federal inspection of creameries.

Dismiss Bribery Charges.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 25.—An indictment against Fred W. GrosClaude of Indianapolis, state representative of the American Heating and Ventilating company, charged with bribing Henry J. Adams, former trustee of Nevins township, was dismissed in the circuit court.

Brazil Man Dies In South.

Killed by a Train.

CARRANZA ARMY CROSSES BORDER

Entrain For Agua Prieta to Reinforce Garrison.

ESCORTED BY U. S. TROOPS

Pass Through Texas With Permission From Wilson—Declare Villa Has Already Abandoned the City of Chihuahua.

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 25.—The entraining of Carranza troops at Eagle Pass, Texas, and at Laredo for shipment through the United States have commenced, according to telegrams received here.

The troops will be escorted by United States soldiers through American territory and should reach Auga Prieta tonight or Tuesday morning. It is said the ammunition was shipped from El Paso to the Carranza garrison at Agua Prieta.

Carranza people asserted that Villa has already abandoned the city of Chihuahua, the troops having marched westward toward Sonora, instead of entraining to Juarez, as the other Villa forces did. This is told in a telegram. The telegram contained other information from Carranza sources. It follows:

"There is much gratification here on receipt of news that American war vessels in Vera Cruz harbor fired a presidential salute of twenty-one guns when the news of the recognition was learned, the Mexican gunboats answering the salute. The compliment being unexpected, was the more welcome as a token of friendship.

"First Chief Carranza will visit Aguas Calientes, Guadalajara and other central points before coming to this city where big preparations are being made to welcome him. Official confirmation is received of the abandonment of Chihuahua City by Villa and of the wanton destruction of a vast amount of railroad and other property there by his forces.

"Constitutionalist columns advancing on the city are now at Jiminez. They have met no opposition and expect none. Guieterz has rushed two and a half million pesos to the state treasury at Saltillo and pledged support to the Constitutionalist government."

Gutierrez is one of the former presidents elected by the Villa-Zapata faction after their defection from Carranza.

WOUNDS MINISTER IN FIGHT

Shot During Altercation With Hunter Who Was Trespassing.

Mooresville, Ind., Oct. 25.—The Rev. W. T. Morgan, a minister of Mooresville, was accidentally shot in the neck by C. H. Brannan, a railroad man of Indianapolis, whom he had ordered from his farm. Brannan was hunting with a man who give his name as W. H. Borrah, a druggist of East Washington street, Indianapolis.

The minister accused Brannan of attempting to strike him with the butt of the shotgun. As the weapon was raised over Brannan's shoulder it was discharged. The charge tore away a muscle in the minister's neck, exposing the juglar vein and a large artery.

Henry Beeler, town marshal, was not here and no effort was made to detain the hunters, who returned to Indianapolis. They promised to return to learn the condition of the minister.

STUDENTS LEVEL ORCHARD

Clear Sight For New Gym For Indiana University.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 25.—Destruction was waged by the Indiana university gymnasium "pioneers" on the apple orchard of more than three hundred trees, which had to be cleared to make room for the new $175,000 gymnasium. Five hundred enthusiastic students and faculty members, each armed with an ax, attacked the orchard and in a few hours every one of the trees had been felled.

President William Lowe Bryan met with the five hundred students in front of Maxwell hall and delivered a brief talk before the parade to the new field.

Hunt For Alleged Slayer.

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 25.—Sheriff's deputies are pursuing Burke McClure, forty-four years old, formerly a prominent merchant of Man, Logan county, who is alleged to have shot and killed his wife, twenty-six years old, and her cousin, Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, thirty, and wounded Miss Grace Justice an Charley Perry, near Barboursville.

Home For Y. W. C. A.

STATE AUDITOR CITED IN SWAMP LAND CASE

Ordered to Appear In Laporte Court.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 25.—The last step taken in the Dixon W. Place drainage ditch project, F. M. Trissal, a lawyer of Chicago, representing land owners in the Kankakee valley, filed an intervening petition in the C. H. Tuesburg drainage ditch case in the Laporte superior court, asking that the auditor of state and auditors of Laporte and Starke counties be brought into court and required to show why they should not turn over to the clerk of the court all moneys turned into the school funds for the sale of reclaimed lands in the Kankakee valley.

The land owners contend that under a federal provision, when the land was given to the state, and by legislative enactment, all money received from the sale of the swamp land should be used for the improvement of the river and the land adjoining. After hearing arguments Judge Crumpacker permitted the petition to be filed and ordered that summons be issued for the auditor of state and the auditors of Laporte and Starke counties to appear in court No. 13 and show cause why they should not turn into court the money received from sales held in the past.

WHITE PLAGUE CONVENTION

North Atlantic Tuberculosis Conference to Meet at Albany, N. Y.

New York, Oct. 25.—Over one thousand tuberculosis workers from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia will gather in Albany on Nov. 4 to attend the second annual meeting of the North Atlantic Tuberculosis conference and the annual tuberculosis conference of the state charities aid association. The meeting will cover a period of four days.

Governor Whitman will address the meeting on the opening day. The other speakers at this meeting will be Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, state commissioner of health, and Homer Polkes, secretary of the state charities aid society.

Drops Dead While Praying.

Greensburg, Ind., Oct. 25.—William P. Hann, eighty years old, dropped dead in the Christian church here. He had just finished the opening prayer when he was seized with paralysis and sank down in his seat. His last words, "O, Lord, may we be ready when the summons comes," were uttered in a strong, unfaltering voice.

Mosquitoes Versus Barbers.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 25.—Some farmers of the west, especially in Kansas, have returned temporarily to the fashion of wearing long whiskers and hair to prevent the mosquitoes from interfering with harvesting. The farmers and their helpers report that this is the only protection they have from these insects.

Learns of $15.000 Legacy; Dies.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 25.—Claude S. Anderson, forty-one, a powder maker at Carneys Point, died of ptomaine poisoning at the Delaware hospital following his return from Philadelphia where he had consulted with an attorney in regard to the collection of a legacy of $15,000.

Cavell Memorial Service.

London, Oct. 25.—The memorial service for Miss Cavell, the British nurse who was executed by the German authorities in Brussels, which was meant to be an unobtrusive tribute, is developing national proportions.

Navy Re-Enlistments.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Navy statistics show that 75 per cent of the crews are re-enlisting as compared with 28 per cent about five years ago. Credit for the increased re-enlistment is given to the naval reserve law.

Rheumatism Easily Relieved By Cleansing the Blood

S. S. S. Gives Quick Relief by Toning Up the Blood

Yes, but how? A natural question. The answer is that you must cleanse your blood by stimulating it to healthy, vigorous action, so that it will throw off the germs and impurities that cause Rheumatism. The action of the wonderful blood purifier, S. S. S. is to practically renew the life blood, give it vigor, stimulate the flow making it throw out the germs and the poison impurities. The excruciating pains of Rheumatism, whether it is the shooting, stabbing Sciatica, the gripping agony of muscular Rheumatism, or aching arms and legs that break up sleep will be entirely relieved by S. S. S. Don't use nostrums and drugs. Take the blood bath—Nature's blood tonic, S. S. S. Get it at any druggist, but insist upon S. S. S. Let us tell you about blood diseases. Send for booklet "What the Mirror Tells," or if yours is a peculiar case, write S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga., but begin treatment at once.

THE BATTLE-CRY

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

CHAPTER XI.

That summer Juanita's cabin rose on the small patch of ground bought from the Widow Everson, for in these hills the raising of a house is a simple thing which goes forward subject to no delays of striking workmen or balking contractors. The usual type, with its single room, may be reared in a few days by volunteers who turn their labor into a frolic. She had owed much to Jerry Everson and to Good Anse Talbott, for had her building force been solidly of Havey or McBriar complexion the school would henceforth have stood branded, in native eyes, a feud institution.

But Good Anse and Jerry, who were tolerated by both factions, and were gifted with a rough-hewn diplomacy had known upon whom to call, even while they had seemed to select at random.

The cabin had been finished just before the news came of the death of Fletch McNash, and Jerry Everson had gone over with her to survey and admire it.

As he stood under the newly laid roof, sniffing the fresh, woody fragrance of the green timbers, he produced from under his coat what looked like a giant powder-horn. He had scraped and polished it until it shone like varnish, and he hung it by its leather thong above the hearth.

"What is it for, Jerry?" demanded the girl, and with that he took it down again and set it to his lips and blew.

A mellow sound, not loud, but far-carrying, like the fox-hunter's tally-ho, floated over the valley.

"Our house hain't more than a whoop an' a holler away," he said awkwardly, "but when ye're livin' over hyar by yoreself, ef ye ever wants anything in ther nighttime, jest blow thet horn."

After she had almost burst her cheeks with effort, he added: "Don't never blow this signal onless ye wants ter raise merry hell."

Then he imitated very low, through pursed lips, three long blasts and three short ones.

"What's that signal?" she demanded.

"Ye've heered the McBriar yell," he told her. "Thet horn calls ther Havey rallyin' signal. When thet goes out every Havey thet kin tote a gun's got ter git up an' come. Hit means war."

"Thank you, Jerry. I won't call the Haveys to battle."

The night after she had flung her challenge down to Bad Anse Havey Juanita stayed at the McNash cabin to be with Dawn and the widow. The next day she went with them to the mountainside "buryin'-ground," where Good Anse performed the last rites for the dead.

After it was all over, and it had been decided that the widow was to take the younger children up Meeting-house fork to live with a brother, the missionary and the teacher started back. Jeb was to stay here alone to run the farm, and when Juanita returned to the ridge Dawn went with her.

They were passing a tumbling waterfall, shrunken now to a trickling rill, when Dawn broke the long silence.

"Wunst, when I war a leetle gal," she said, "Unc' Perry war a-hiding out up thet branch from ther revenuers. I used ter fotch his victuals up thar ter him."

Juanita turned suddenly with a shocked expression. It was as if her little songbird friend had suddenly and violently reverted; as if the flower had turned to poison weed. And as Juanita looked Dawn's eyes were blazing and Dawn's face was as dark as her black hair—dark with the same expression which brooded on her brother's brow.

"What is it, dear?" Juanita asked, and in tense and fiery voice the younger girl exclaimed:

"I wishes I war a man. I wouldn't wait and set still like Jeb's doin'. By heaven, I'd git thet murderer. I'd cut his heart outen his body."

"I tole ye," quietly commented Brother Anse, "thet ther instinct's in ther blood. Anse Havey went down ter Frankfort an' set in ther legislater—but he come back ther same man thet went down. Somethin' called him. Somethin' calls ter every mountain man thet goes away, an' he harkens ter ther call."

"Anse come back," repeated Dawn triumphantly. "An' Anse is hyar. Ef Jeb sets thar an' don't do nothin', I reckon Anse Havey won't hardly let hit go by without doin' nothin'. Thank heaven, thar's some men left in ther hills like Anse Havey—but ef Jeb don't do nothin' I'll do hit myself."

Again Juanita shuddered, but it was not the time for argument, and so she went on, bitterly accusing Havey in her heart for his wizard hold on these people—a hold which incited them to bloodshed as the fanatical priests of the desert urge on their wild tribesmen.

She did not know that Bad Anse Havey went every few days over to the desolated cabin and often persuaded the boy to ride home with him and spend a part of the time in his larger brick house. She did not know that Bad Anse was coming nearer to lying than he had ever before come in withholding his strong suspicions from the boy because of his unwillingness to incite another tragedy.

So when one day a McBriar henchman by the name of Luke Thixton had left the mountains and gone west, Anse hoped that this man would stay away for a long while, and he refrained from mentioning to Jeb that now, when the bird had flown, he knew definitely of his guilt.

While Dawn, under the guidance of her preceptress, was making the acquaintance of a new and sweeter life, whose influences fed her imagination and fired her quick ambition, her brother was more solemnly being molded by the Havey chief.

The water-mill of old Bob McGreegor was the nearest spot to the dwelling of Bad Anse Havey where grist could be ground to meal, and sometimes when Jeb came over to the brick house he would volunteer to throw upon his shoulders the sack of corn and plod with it up across the ridges. He would sit there in the dusty old mill while the slow wheel groaned and creaked and the cumbersome millstones did their slow stint of work.

So one day, toward the end of August Juanita, who had climbed up the path to the poplar to look over her battlefield and renew her vows, saw Jeb sturdily plodding his way in long, resolute strides through the woods toward the mill, a heavy sack upon his shoulders and a rifle swinging at his side.

That day chance had it that no one else had come to mill and Bob McGreegor had persuaded the boy to drink from the "leetle blue kag" until his mind was ripe for mischief. While the mill slowly ground out his meal Jeb McNash sat on a pile of rubbish in the gloomy shack, nursing his knees in interlocked fingers. Old Bob drank and stormed and cursed the inertia of the present generation. The lad's lean fingers tautened and gripped themselves more tensely and his eyes began to smolder and blaze with a wicked light as he listened.

"Ye looks like a right stand-up sort of a boy, Jeb," growled the old fire-eater who had set more than a few couples at each other's throats. "An' I reckon hit's all right, too, fer a feller ter bide his time, but hit 'pears ter me like ther men of these days don't do nothin' but bide thar time."

"I won't bide mine no longer than what I has ter," snapped the boy. "Anse 'lows ter tell me when he finds out who hit war thet got my pap. Thet's all I needs ter know."

Old Bob shook his head knowingly and laughed in his tangled beard.

"I reckon Anse Havey'll take his leisure. He's got other fish to fry. He's a-thinkin' 'bout bigger things than yore grievance, son."

The boy rose, and his voice came very quietly and ominously from suddenly whitened lips. "What does ye mean by thet, Uncle Bob?"

"Mebby I don't mean nothin' much. Then ergin mebby I could give ye a pretty good idee who kilt yore pap. Mebby I could tell ye 'bout a feller—a feller thet hain't fur removed from Old Milt hisself—thet went snoopin' crost ther ridge ther same day yore pap died with a rifle-gun 'crost his elbow and his pockets strutty with ca'tridges."

"Who war he?" came the tense demand with the sudden snap of rifle-fire. "Who war thet feller?"

Old Bob filled and lighted his pipe with fingers that had grown unsteady from the ministration of the "leetle blue kag." He laughed again in a drunken fashion.

"Ef Bad Anse Havey don't 'low ter tell ye, son," he artfully demurred, "I reckon hit wouldn't hardly be becomin' fer me ter name his name."

The boy picked up his battered hat.

"Give me my grist," he said shortly. He stood by, breathing heavily but silently while the sack was being tied then, putting it down by the door, he wheeled and faced the older man.

"Now ye're a-goin' ter tell me what I needs ter know," he said quietly "or I'm a-goin' ter kill ye whar ye stands."

Uncle Bob laughed. He had meant all the while to impart that succulent bit of information, which was no information at all, but mischief-making suspicion. He had held off only to infuriate and envenom the boy with the cumulative force of climax.

"Hit warn't nobody but—" After a pause he went on, "but old Milt McBriar's own son, Young Milt."

"Thet's all," said Jeb soberly; "I'm obleeged ter ye."

He went out with the sack on his shoulders and the rifle under his arm, but when he had reached a place in the woods where a blind trail struck back he deposited his sack carefully under a ledge of overhanging rock, for the clouds were mounting and banking now in a threat of rain and it was not his own meal, so he must be careful of its safety.

Then he crossed the ridge until he came to a point where the thicket grew down close and tangled to the road. He had seen Young Milt going west along that road this morning and by nightfall he would be riding back. The gods of chance were playing into his hands.

So he lay down, closely hugging the earth, and cocked his rifle. For hours he crouched there with unspeakable patience, while his muscles cramped and his feet and hands grew cold under the pelting of a rain which was strangely raw and chilling for the season. The sun sank in an angry bank of thunder-heads and the west grew lurid. The drenching downpour blinded him and trickled down his spine under his clothes, but at last he saw the figure he awaited riding a horse he knew. It was the same roan mare that Bad Anse had restored to Milt McBriar.

When young Milt rode slowly by, fifty yards away, with his mount at a walk and his reins hanging, he was untroubled by any anxiety, because he was in his own territory and was at heart fearless. The older boy from Tribulation felt his temples throb and the rifle came slowly up and the one eye which was not closed looked point-blank across immovable sights and along a steady barrel into the placid face of his intended victim.

He could see the white of Milt's eye and the ragged lock of hair under the hat-brim which looked like a smudge of soot across his brow. Then slowly Jeb McNash shook his head. A spasm of battle went through him and shook him like a convulsion to the soles of his feet. He had but to crook his finger to appease his blood-lust—and break his pledge.

"I done give Anse my hand ter bide my time 'twell I war dead sartain," he told himself. "I hain't quite dead sartain," he told himself. "I hain't quite dead sartain yit. I reckon I've got ter wait a spell."

He uncocked the rifle and the other boy rode on, but young Jeb folded his arms on the wet earth and buried his face in them and sobbed, and it was an hour later that he stumbled to his feet and went groggily back, drunk with bitterness and emotion, toward the house of Anse Havey. Yet when he arrived after nightfall his tongue told nothing and his features told less.

* * * * * * *

Juanita, living in the cabin she had built with the girl who had become her companion and satellite, making frequent hard journeys to some house which the shadow of illness had invaded, found it hard to believe that this life had been hers only a few months. Suspense seemed to stretch weeks to years, and she awoke each new day braced to hear the news of some fresh outbreak, and wondered why she did not. A few neighborhood children were already learning their rudiments, and plans for more buildings were going forward.

Sometimes Jeb came over from the brick house to see his sister, and on the boy's face was always a dark cloud of settled resolve. If Juanita never questioned him on the topic that she knew was nearest his heart it was because she realized that to do so would be the surest way to estrange his friendship and confidence.

In one thing she had gained a point. She had bought as much property as she should need. Back somewhere behind the veil of mysteries Anse Havey had pressed a button or spoken a word, and all the hindrance that had lain across her path straightway evaporated. Men had come to her, with no further solicitation on her part, and now it seemed that many were animated by a desire to turn an honest penny by the sale of land. In every conveyance that was drawn—deeds of ninety-nine-year lease instead of sale—she read a thrifty and careful knowledge of land laws and reservation of mineral and timber rights which she traced to the head of the clan.

As summer spent itself there was opportunity for felling timber, and the little sawmill down in the valley sent up its drone and whine in proclamation that her trees were being turned into squared timbers for her buildings.

Once, when Milt McBriar rode up to the sawmill, he found the girl sitting there, her hands clasped on her knees, gazing dreamily across the sawdust and confusion of the place.

"Ye're right smart interested in thet thar woodpile, hain't ye, ma'am?" he inquired with a slow, benevolent smile.

His kindliness of guise invited confidence, and there was no one else within earshot, so the girl looked up, her eyes a little misty and her voice impulsive.

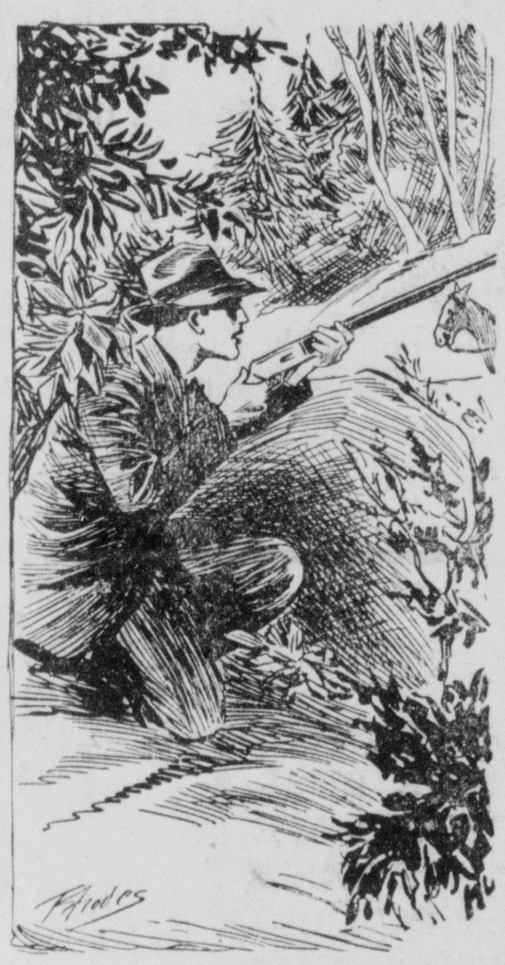
"Mr. McBriar," she said, "every one of those timbers means part of a dream to me, and with every one of them that is set in place will go a hope and a prayer."

He nodded sympathetically. "I reckon," he said, "ye kin do right smart good, too."

"Mr. McBriar," she flashed at him in point-blank questioning, "since I came here I have tried to be of use in a very simple and ineffective fashion. I have done what little I could for the sick and distressed, yet I am constantly being warned that I'm not allowed to carry on my work. Do you know of any reason why I shouldn't go ahead?"

He gazed at her for a moment, quizzically, then shook his head.

"Oh, pshaw!" he exclaimed, "I wouldn't let no sich talk es thet fret me none. Folks round hyar hain't got much ter do except ter gossip 'round. Nobody hain't a-goin' ter hinder ye. We hain't such bad people, after all."



The Rifle Came Slowly Up.

After that she felt that from the McBriars she had gained official sanction, and her resentment against Anse Havey grew because of his scornful ungraciousness.

The last weeks of the summer were weeks of drought and plague. Ordinarily, in the hills storms brew swiftly and frequently and spend themselves in violent outpourings and cannonading of thunder, but that year the clouds seemed to have dried up, and down in the tablelands of the Blue Grass the crops were burned to worthless stalk and shrunken ear. Even up here, in the birthplace of waters, the corn was brown and sapless, so that when a breeze strayed over the hillside fields they sent up a thirsty, dying rasp of rattling whisper.

It was not only in the famished forests and seared fields that the hot breath of the plague breathed, carrying death in its fetid nostrils. Back in the cabins of the "branch-water folks" where little springs diminished and became polluted, all those who were not strong enough to throw off the touch of the specter's finger sickened and died, and typhoid went in and out of Havey shack and McBriar cabin whispering, "a pest on both your houses."

The widow McNash had not been herself since the death of Fletch. She who had once been so strong over her drudgery, sat day long on the doorstep of her brother's hovel and, in the language of her people, "jest sickened an' pined away."

So, as Juanita Holland and Good Anse Talbott rode sweating mules about the hills, receiving calls for help faster than they could answer them, they were not astonished to hear that the widow was among the stricken. Though they fought for her life, she refused to fight herself, and once again the Eastern girl stood with Dawn in the brier-choked "buryin'-ground," and once more across an open grave she met the eyes of the man who stood for the old order.

But now she had learned to set a lock on her lips and hold her counsel. So, when she met Anse and Jeb afterward, she asked without rancor: "May I take little Jesse back with me, too? He's too young," she added, with just a heartsick trace of her old defiance, "to be useful to you, Mr. Havey, and I'd like to teach him what I can."

Anse and Jeb conferred, and the elder man came back and nodded his head.

"Jesse can go back with ye," he said. "I'm still aimin' to give ye all the rope ye wants. When ye've had enough an' quits, let me know, an' I'll take care of Fletch's children."

And on her farm, as folks called Juanita's place, that September saw many changes. Near the original cabin was springing up a new structure, larger than any other house in that neighborhood, except, possibly, the strongholds of the chiefs, and as it grew and began to take form it imparted an air of ordered trimness to the countryside about it. It was fashioned in such style as should be in keeping with its surroundings and not give too emphatic a note of alien strangeness.

Juanita wished that her cabin could house more occupants, for the plague had left many motherless families, and many children might have come into her fold. As it was, she had several besides the McNashes as her nucleus, and while the weather held good she was rushing her work of timber-felling and building which the winter would halt.

Nine out of ten persons have this dread disease

Pyorrhea—the most general disease in the world—is the disease you should be guarding your teeth against. It is caused by a germ which is found in every human mouth.

Thousands have already lost some or all of their teeth from this disease; in thousands it has reached the stage of bleeding gums and loose teeth; in thousands of others the germ, unsuspected, is just starting its work of destruction. Start today to guard your teeth from the dread results of this disease by using a corrective and preventive treatment in your daily toilet.

To meet the need for such a treatment and to enable everyone to take the necessary precautions against this disease, a prominent dentist has put his own prescription before the public in the convenient form of Senreco Tooth Paste.

Senreco contains the best corrective and preventive for pyorrhea known to dental science. Used daily it will successfully protect your teeth from this disease. Senreco also contains the best harmless agent for keeping the teeth clean and white. It has a refreshing flavor and leaves a wholesomely clean, cool and pleasant taste in the mouth.

Start the Senreco treatment tonight—full details in the folder wrapped around every tube. Symptoms described. A 25c two oz. tube is sufficient for six or eight weeks of the pyorrhea treatment. Get Senreco at your druggists today, or send 4c in stamps or coin for sample tube and folder. Address The Sentanel Remedies Co., 503 Union Central Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

RAILWAY DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION TO MEET

Semi-Annual Session Promises to be Most Important in History of Organization.

Indications are that the semi-annual meeting of the Railway Development Association, which will be held in New York, November 9, 10 and 11, will be the most important in the history of the organization, bringing together railroad and government officials and business interests to consider industrial and agricultural development and commercial activity in general. The program which has been completed under the direction of John C. Emig, president, and H. O. Hartzell, secretary, points to a meeting which because of the wide range of subjects for discussion will be of interest in business circles generally.

The Railway Development Association is composed of railroad officials of the United States and Canada who are engaged in promoting industrial and agricultural growth for their respective manageemnts; and with the program this year including bankers and other outside business interests as well as government officials it is believed that the coming meeting in New York will mark an epoch in this work. Being international in scope, meetings are held in different sections each year in order to enable the membership to study general business conditions. The last meeting was held at St. Paul, Minn., it being the plan to have the railroad men inspect the shipping facilities, export terminals, etc., in New York and examine also transit facilities in Manhattan.

At the informal dinner of members and their friends, which will take place the evening of the 10th, several prominent speakers are on the program, including Hon. F. C. Howe, United States Commissioner of Immigration; Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts; George A. Post, president, Railway Business Association; Howard Elliott, president, New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and Ralph Peters, president, Long Island Railroad.

WINS STOCK JUDGING PRIZE

Eighteen-Year-Old School Teacher Out-Classed All Comers In Contest.

Lawrence, Kan., Oct. 25.—Maybe it is in spite of her "book learning," but anyway, Carol Martin, an eighteen-year-old Douglas county school teacher, had little difficulty in winning the first prize of $20 in the stock judging contest at the recent county fair. She did this in competition with six men and one other girl, her sister, Miss Ethel Martin, who was the winner's closest competitor until she withdrew from the contest at noon so as not to miss her afternoon classes at the University of Kansas.

BOYS KILL TWO WOLVES

Wade Into Pack of Fourteen Huge Timber Wolves.

Rhinelander, Wis., Oct. 25.—While digging ginseng near Long Lake, Forest county, Dewey and Roy Dangenbaugh, boys, eighteen years of age, saw a pack of huge timber wolves and succeeded in killing two of the animals.

From a hillside they counted fourteen wolves at play in a little marsh below them. At first the boys thought they were collie dogs, but suddenly ralizing the animals were timber wolves and opened fire on them with shotguns. They knocked down six of the animals, but killed only two, the others making their escape.

Mrs. T. A. Mott, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. M. E. Winchester, went to Richmond this morning to spend a few days with relatives.
